

Abstract

social system of villages is based on collectivism for along time. The elders have prestiges, and high status in this social life. so, many of the older people in the villages that were the head of the tribe or have big family were known as village elders. In the past, many social and economic problems of rural people have been solved by this people. Today, local people resolve disputes in rural areas because the lack of formal institutions. The purpose of this study was to analyze the effective model for resolving local disputes in villages with using PRA. The way of this research is discriptive analytical methods. Documents and survey methods used for gathering informations. The population in this study consisted of all rural families residing in the city of Zabol and sample size of households were 380 people with using kokaran formula. khi 2 and D summers used for testing hypotheses. The results show that the patterns of rural trustee for resolving disputes and consolidation are effective in Zabol city. so, This result confirms the hypothesis, and some suggestions are offered.

Key words: Local trustees, dispute resolution, PRA, rural city in Zabol.

University of Zabol
Graduate Management
Faculty of Humanities
Department of Geography

Title:

Thesis for MA degree in Geography and Rural Planning
The analysis of Effective pattern in local dispute resolution in villages of zabol city with using PRA.

Supervisor:

DR: Hamid Heydari Mokarar

Advisor:

DR: Morteza Tavakoli

Written by:

Khorshid Hedayati Amin

September 2014